Why This Restaurant Matters

Chef Eddie Matney was one of Arizona's best-known chefs and an early AZeats client. His website demonstrated how chef-driven restaurants were using the web to introduce visitors not only to menus, but also to the personality and philosophy behind the dining experience.

Restaurant Overview

The homepage welcomed guests to Eddie's House as an eclectic neighborhood restaurant that encouraged reservations while highlighting recipes, happy hour, photo galleries, and chef-focused content.

Website Significance

Unlike many early restaurant websites that focused primarily on menus, Eddie's House emphasized the chef as the brand. Visitors could learn about Eddie Matney, explore recipes, and experience the restaurant before arriving.

About the AZeats Historical Archive

This publication is part of the AZeats Historical Archive, preserving early restaurant websites and recognizing Arizona restaurants that embraced the World Wide Web during its formative years.
